Mysterious Death—A Boom in Vaccination—Death of an Old Citizen.

Special to THE TIMES.]

Winnipeg, Nov. 17—The Legislature was in session till 2 o'clock this morning discussing a resolution defining the position of the province on the railway crossing matter. Greenway announced that a policy of retaliation was not proposed. After minor business the house adjourned until 11 o'clock this morning when the Lieutenant-Governor will come down and assent to the measures which have been passed. The house will then adjourn until some time in January.

Sir John Lister Kaye arrived in this city from his Big Balgonie farm last night. New sheds to be erected will accommodate 7800 head of cattle. One hundred British Columbia mares, crossed with thoroughbred stallions, are doing well. Sir John proposes to start a binding-twine factory to supply the northwest at West Selkirk.

Professor Macoun and party, who have been exploring the Mackenzie River district since last may, arrived here to-day. They came by way of Forts Churchill and Cumberland and had a very rough and tedious trip. They leave for Ottawa to-morrow.

Brandon, Nov. 1—A verdict of "not guilty" was returned in the Fletcher murder case.

Edward Grafton Holt, an Irishman worth $150,000, died suddenly at the Leland House, Oak Lake, early yesterday morning. His death was very mysterious. He had taken up a section of land at Oak Lake a few days before.

A MYSTERIOUS CASE.

New York, Nov. 17—An astonishing revelation has been made in the case of a handsomely dressed woman who committed suicide at the Compton House on October 4. Being identified she was buried in the potter's field. On the clothing were the initials A. C. It is now believed that she was Mme. Almonie Calvert Barreme, a married sister of M. Barreme, prefect of the Department of Eure, France, who was murdered in a railway car in January, 1886. The murderer was never brought to justice, but the murdered man's family seem to have been pursued by fatality. One brother died under peculiar circumstances, another is now mad. The father is now dead and now his sister, Mme. Barreme is discovered to be the mysterious Compton House suicide. It was suspected that a member of M. Barreme's wife's family was the murderer.

INSTANTLY KILLED.

Yreka, Cal., Nov. 17—Chas. Young, railway employee, was instantly killed by a premature blast yesterday.

THOUGHT TO BE LOST.

San Francisco, Nov. 17—Whaling captains in port are of opinion that the bark Ohio, now over due, is lost. One of the captains state that she was last seen at the tail end of the fleet off Cape Lisburne, Arctic Ocean. Another statement is that she was seen near St. Matthew's Island, in Behring Sea. If the former statement is correct there is ground for the belief that the bark is lost. If the latter story is true she may still be on her way down.

BADLY DAMAGED.

Hongkong, Nov. 17—The bark Deone, from Sourabaya for San Francisco, has put in here badly damaged, having encountered a typhoon. She will have to change cargo for repairs.

FRENCH WHEAT CROP.

Washington, Nov. 17—The report of Frank Mason, United States consul at Marseilles, has just been received at the state department. It says that the wheat crop in France will fall 80,824,952 bushels below that of last year, and that on the basis of the total yearly consumption of 120,000,000 hectoliers, there is a total net deficit of 87,259,488 bushels to be supplied by importation.

WHITECHAPEL MURDERER.

Paris, Nov. 15—Le Temps professes to believe that a lunatic Russian named Nicholas Wassiley, released from the asylum at Sebastopol in the early part of this year, is the Whitechapel murderer. The journal says he killed and mutilated eight women in 1885, after having been jilted by a Parisian grisette, and was finally arrested while trying to kill a woman. He was committed to the insane asylum, where he was confined until discharged as cured.

FRANCE STANDS BY THE POPE.

Paris, Nov. 15.—In the deputies to-day a motion to abolish the Embassy to the Vatican was rejected. M. Goblet, in a speech, said: "The importance of our protectorate in the eastern countries require the maintenance of friendly relations with the Vatican. Rival powers dispute our protectorate. The friendship of the people is therefore precious. The pope already has his bitterness. Is it for us to increase them? It has been said recently that the pope could no longer count upon any country but France; that does not mean that France will intervene to restore his temporal power; but the more the people is deprived of that power the more France ought to honor him by curtailing none of the respect for the high authority he represents." [Applause.]

The foreign budget was finally approved.

NEW WESTMINSTER NEWS.

The Assizes—Fire Smallpox—Disappeared—Steamer Disabled.

Special to THE TIMES.]

New Westminster, Nov. 17—At the assizes on Friday the 16th, the case of Patrick Kane charged with highway robbery at Vancouver on the evening of the 11th inst., occupied all the afternoon. The prisoner had no counsel but pleaded not guilty. Mr. Drake, Q. C., appeared for the Crown. The evidence of Harry Insley, the Indian, went to show that he was assaulted about 3 o'clock on the morning in question by the prisoner who decamped on the approach of a constable. Constable McKeon, of Vancouver, proved the arrest of the prisoner. The prisoner in defence disclaimed all previous knowledge of Insley. The jury retired at 3 o'clock. Half an hour later the foreman returned to ask the judge if he might question the prisoner. His Lordship declined to permit him. An hour later the jury entered the court room and asked the judge if the prisoner could be convicted on one man's evidence. His Lordship replied no law required more than one man's testimony. The jury retired again shortly after and brought in a verdict of guilty. Sentence was deferred. Court then adjourned till 10 o'clock today.

Bishop Sillitoe and Mrs. Sillitoe returned yesterday afternoon from England.

Thursday last the steamer Glad Tidings while nearing Johnston's landing on her way to Chilliwhack, struck a snag and was disabled. She was brought down to this city last night with a tug for repairs.

At five o'clock last evening the fire alarm was rung and it was found that the residence of M. A. McRae, Queen's avenue, was in flames. The fire brigade were on the spot with the engine as soon as possible but too late to save the building. Most of the furniture was saved. It is supposed the fire was caused by children playing with matches.

All the patients afflicted with smallpox at Mrs. Walworth's place have completely recovered and the quarantine raised. Dr. McLean and James Ellard, who have been attending the sick, returned to this city last night.

VANCOUVER NEWS.

The C. P. R.'s New Move—Thanksgiving Turkey—Wedding Tour.

From our own Correspondent.]

Vancouver, Nov. 16—Thanksgiving day is numbered with the things of the past, as is many a fat turkey which graced the dinner plate of the epicure, as well as the multitude of grouse, duck and deer that would not wait for the huntsman's lead. The workman has returned to his labor, the merchant to his store, the accountant to his desk, the teacher to his pupils, and the pupils to their tasks; the editor to his scissors and pastepot, preserving his quill as a toothpick; and the real estate man to the "dust from whence he sprung" and about which he so often ungratefully lies, all feeling the better for the short respite from business which yesterday's holiday afforded.

The steamer Premier was gaily decorated with flags yesterday afternoon in honor of Mr. C. D. Rand and his charming bride, nee Miss Katie Clute, daughter of Mr. J. S. Clute, collector of customs for New Westminster. The bridal party arrived from the above city on the 14:15 o'clock train and immediately took boat for Portland, intending to spend some little time at the towns on Puget Sound.

Yesterday a large quantity of extra machinery from the Hamilton Manufacturing Co., Peterborough, Ont., for the Moodyville saw mills. The machinery was valued at $3000, and the freight on one car amounted to $480.

It is currently reported here to-day and from a reliable source that the C. P. R. have begun to locate a line for the proposed railway between here and the Sound, and consequently Granville street and adjacent property is on the advance.

A. W. Ross, M. P., has gone to San Francisco for a week's recreation. Mr. E. Rand of the real estate firm of Rand Bros., leaves shortly for England where they intend to open a real estate office.

Mr. Beveridge, of the News-Advertiser, has been suffering severely from a cold of late, but is again beginning to move about, though yet unfit for duty.

I GRIEVE FOR THEE.

Funeral Sermon by Bishop Brondell, of Montana, on the Late Archbishop Seghers.

An Eloquent Tribute to the Lamented Prelate by One Who Knew Him Well.

I grieve for thee, my brother. * * * * Exceeding beautiful and amiable, as the mother loveth her only son, so did I love thee. * * * * How are the valiant fallen, and the weapons of war perished." II. Kings, chap. 1, vers. 26, 27.

Most Reverend, Right Reverend, Reverend Fathers, Beloved Brethern: In these words does the inspired writer, David, bewail the loss of his friend, Jonathan, who was slain in battle fighting for Israel. With similar feelings do we stand here to-day in presence of the lifeless remains of one who was a spiritual Father to you, beloved Christians, a brother to us of the episcopacy, who was beautiful in life and amiable in character; whose mind was stored with varied and great learning; who was loved and admired by all who knew him; who, most valiant, has fallen, being slain while fighting the battles of the people of God, and "with whom many weapons of war perished."

It is but two years since we saw him here surrounded by all the splendor of Catholic ceremonial—invested with the Pallium, a sign of unity with the Vicar of Christ, and granted by His Holiness as a personal honor. A halo of sanctity surrounded him wherever he went, and in whatsoever he did; his observation, learning, experience and wisdom made us turn towards him in difficult questions to obtain a solution. His great mind went far and deep and soared high as with eagle eye he scanned the countries to be evangelised, and future contingencies. Planning, correcting, executing with despatch whatsoever his sacred and exalted office required. Truly to him may be applied the word of Wisdom IV., 13: "Being made perfect in a short space, he fulfilled a long time."

When death strikes one we love, the voice of nature calls back to memory whatsoever made us love him. Following this natural impulse of the heart, let us cast a hurried glance at the days of Archbishop Seghers, who to us was our consecrator, our predecessor and successor in the See of Vancouver Island, once our Metropolitan; who to you was a dearly beloved and a most highly venerated Bishop and who, whilst performing apostolic labors in Alaska, has shed his blood for the sheep of the fold of Christ, and comes back to us from those frozen regions in the icy coldness of death, twenty-four months after his tragic end.

The most Reverend Archbishop, Bishop of Vancouver Island, Charles John Seghers, was born at Ghent, Belgium, the 26th day of December, 1839, of a family known for its fidelity to church and state. His childhood and youth were passed at St. Barbe's College, where knowledge was imparted to his mind and piety instilled into his heart by the devoted Jesuit Fathers. He lost all his immediate relatives by consumption, and was told that he should exert himself assiduously in order to avoid the same fell destroyer. Bodily exercise joined to his buoyant spirit kept him up in the midst of his arduous studies at the seminary of Ghent, where he was ordained deacon and received in 1862 the permission of devoting himself to the American missions. Before he joined us in the American College at Louvain, we were told by those who knew him that one of the best students, one of the brightest, most pious and zealous seminarians of Ghent, would soon be with us to prepare for the same field of labor. We had the privilege to be with him during the scholastic term of 1862-3. His prominent virtues; his punctuality at the exercises, his unassuming piety, his diligence in study, his firmness of character, his perspicacity and spirit of mortification, his sound principles, his joyous disposition, his kindness to all, his varied knowledge made us look up to him as a model seminarian who would become a great priest in the Church of God. When Bishop Demers wrote that he had but one priest in a most extensive and difficult country, Father Seghers presented himself as a candidate for the Diocese of Vancouver Island, for the very hardship of a work was ever to that grand soul an inducement to undertake it. Yet he would have given up cheerfully the object of his ambition, should the voice of authority have counseled otherwise.

When in 1863 he had left for the far west, the rector of the college speaking of him said: "This is the most energetic student our Alma Mater ever possessed." Father Seghers at Victoria was, as soon as known, the trusted priest of Bishop and people. Endowed with a beautiful voice and well versed in religious and secular music he trained and was the soul of the cathedral choir for many years; he exercised with the greatest care the sacred ministry amongst the people, and was an experienced and learned director of the Sisters of St. Ann. But his exertions threatened him with consumption, as frequent hemorrhages succeeded his musical directions. In 1869 he was in the last stage of consumption when Bishop Demers took him to Rome in the capacity of theologian at the Vatican Council. Visiting Pius the IX Bishop Demers introduced him as a priest who was suffering from a deadly sickness, and asked a special blessing from His Holiness. The Holy Father laid his hands on the head of the devoted priest and prayed for a while. From that moment Father Seghers was well and suffered but one hemorrhage which occured at the death of Bishop Demers. It took well nigh two years before a new Bishop was elected, but, amongst those who knew the diocese no one doubted who would be the successor, though Father Seghers had hardly reached his 33rd year. When the news of his appointment came he received it with true humility, and was consecrated at Victoria on the 29th day of June, 1873, by the Apostle of Oregon, Archbishop Blanchet. He placed on his escutcheon the Cross of St. Andrew and the palm, emblem of victory, and took for his motto "Victoria fides." "this is the victory which overcometh the world, our faith." We may well interpret his sign now and say that by the cross of suffering he obtained the palm of martyrdom.

As soon as he was a pontiff in the Church of God he consecrated his diocese to the Sacred Heart of Jesus, and started off on a missionary tour of the West Coast. Coming home, he wrote us, "I have visited the West Coast of Vancouver Island, in a small schooner as far as Cape Cook, 230 miles from Victoria. I have preached Christ to 18 tribes who heard the Christian doctrine for the first time. We have taken possession by planting the cross of a locality where no priest, no preacher of the gospel ever set his foot. Four thousand Indians promise to become Christians, make the sign of the cross and sing religious canticles. In one camp they know the Lord's Prayer and the Hail Mary, and in most of them the Lord's Prayer alone, all in their own language. Pro coronide, 882 Baptisms of children. The first fruit of the consecration of this Diocese to the Sacred Heart of Jesus. Join me in giving thanks to God." Soon he established a permanent mission at Hesquiat, from which place the Faith has been spread among the neighboring tribes, so that in the wildest places of this island three flourishing Catholic Missions exist. He promoted the works established by his predecessor by procuring excellent missionaries and by increasing at the present day the institutions of the Sisters at Victoria and Cowichan. He built a church and established a school and placed a priest at Nanaimo. He sent the first priest as resident in Alaska to Fort Wrangle. In 1877 he left for the Yukon and came back in 1878 with plans for further developing the missions in the far north, when he received the news of his appointment as successor to Archbishop Blanchet. He wrote at the time: "They will not believe me; but I sincerely regret being removed." He did all he could within the limits of obedience to prevent a separation from his beloved See of Vancouver Island, and yielded only when the voice of authority insisted. He was received in triumph by the people of Portland who had heard of him, and never will we forget the grand scene when at the portals of St. Mary's Cathedral the aged Patriarch of the Far West, Archbishop Blanchet, embraced the young Archbishop, who came to lift off from his aged shoulders the burthen of a metropolitan. Neither will we forget the Nunc Dimittis, spoken by the old and the vigorous words spoken by the new Archbishop. Hardly had he found a room in the house when he started off to visit the missions in Montana and Idaho, going everywhere and visiting everyone whom he knew to stand in need of his services. While he was travelling in the mountains we asked him to consecrate us here, and his answer was given at once: "I will do so on December 14th." In 1880 he visited the Archdiocese of Oregon, lecturing whenever an opportunity offered itself and performing with great wisdom all the duties of an ordinary. He worked hard to reduce the debt of the Cathedral and promoted every good work. In 1880 Archbishop Blanchet resigned and the new Archbishop of Oregon convoked a Provincial Council. He was invested with the Pallium, held the Synod, and we took the acts of the Council to Rome. When we presented the letter of the Bishops of the Eclesiastical Province of Oregon, composed by the Archbishop, to the Pope, Leo XIII read it aloud, and his emotion was marked, as with trembling voice and bedewed eyes he read the expressions of filial attachment to his sacred person and to his Pontifical acts. Hardly had the Holy Father completed the reading, when he said with emphasis: "I will answer this letter," and a few days later we received from the hands of His Holiness a brief in which he expressed to the Prelates of the Province his great gratitude and sent his Pontifical blessing to pastors and people.

In 1883 Archbishop Seghers was most active in providing Montana and Idaho with bishops and he was successful in his endeavors. This left the See of Vancouver Island vacant, as the humility and ill-health of the devoted administrator, Very Rev. Father Jonckau, prevented him from accepting the episcopacy. The Archbishop asked us to come to Portland and travel to Montana in his company whilst he would visit the Indian Missions. We went to the Umatilla, to the Nez Perces, to the Cœur d'Alene's, and everywhere the Archbishop's presence made a feast, for the Catholic ceremonial was carried out scrupulously, the Archbishop preached morning and evening, administered the sacraments, settled disputes, and did everything with perfection and despatch. He left us at Spokane Falls, wishing us God speed in Montana, and returned to Portland in time to bury his venerable predecessor, Archbishop Blanchet. Nothing was more edifying in the life of Archbishop Seghers than the love and reverence he manifested to his predecessors in the Sees of Vancouver Island and of Oregon. Fathers Blanchet and Demers came out to the far west in 1838, the first priests of God's church. He looked upon them as saints whom God had chosen to establish His church in these new regions; he admired their many virtues; he gathered from them the knowledge of their apostolic works and the Lord chose him to assist these saintly men in their declining years. He was as humble and submissive in their presence as a child in the presence of a beloved father. They felt that, whatever they entrusted to his hands, was safe, and when they had departed this life, he held their memory in veneration and narrated to the people the great work of these servants of God.

In 1884 he went to Rome, taking with him to Montreal a number of young men from Oregon who showed an inclination to enter the ecclesiastical state. While in the Eternal City he obtained from the Holy Father permission to return to the see of Vancouver Island for the purpose of carrying on the missionary work in Alaska. The heroic act drew forth tears from Leo XIII, and the Apostle of Alaska prepared himself for the work by obtaining alms in France, Belgium, England, Ireland and the States, as means to establish the new missions, and by praying at the shrines of the saints for the success of his undertakings. He came back to assist at the Third Plenary Council of Baltimore, where, both in the private and public sessions, his wisdom and learning, his energy and humility, were admired by prelates, priests and people. This was the grand occasion to provide for a New Metropolitan, and, with the bishops of the Province, he succeeded in securing the noble services of the Bishop of Savannah.

In the spring of 1885 he passed through Helena where he preached on the Feast of St. Joseph, and lectured in the evening on Alaska, for the benefit of this mission. He took his departure from Oregon leaving everything in good shape, and Easter, 1885, saw him in Victoria. What joy at his return was manifested here I cannot but picture to myself, knowing the esteem and veneration of clergy and people for his person, his position, and his accomplishments. Pope Leo XIII sent him the Pallium as the grandest mark of special esteem, and two years ago we were rejoicing together at the event and we all gathered here in thanksgiving to

A NEW POLITICAL MORALITY.

Amongst a mass of personal vituperation in a late issue of the Vancouver World, intended as a reply to THE TIMES' condemnation of political apostasy, we find an enunciation of the new political ethics which govern our contemporary's conduct, in the following unmistakable language:

"Our conception of a true journalist is that he must set aside his personal opinions—be they political or religious convictions—sacrifice his own self as it were—for the purpose of serving the cause of his employers."

In the same article the writer (who is also a proprietor) speaks about the right that every man possesses of "making a living" at his chosen profession and talks glibly about "true" journalism, etc. As we will not bandy personalities with the World, the whole of the article in question, with the exception of the above quotation, may be set aside as unworthy of notice. But the immoral political creed that finds expression in the language quoted cannot be permitted to pass unchallenged and uncondemned. The mercenary man in any walk of life is bad enough, but when he enters the profession of journalism, and thus boldly proclaims that he is a purchasable article, the worst phase of immorality has been reached. People treat him and his teachings with distrust. His employers fear to trust him with their full confidence and the general public treats him as he deserves, with contempt. Such a man may be used as a tool for a time to answer some ulterior purpose or to gain a point, but in the end he is cast off. The duty of the true journalist is to expound the views and principles of the party with which he is identified and in order to do that he must be in accord with the policy of the party. According to the theory expounded by the World, a newspaper must always be on the stand to be knocked down to the highest bidder. If so, then farewell to the independence of the press and the liberties of the people. Monopolists and tyrants, if they pay for it, are to have the propounding of public opinion to suit their own ends. Injustice and wrong are to be lauded and the people are to be called upon to kiss the hand that administers the stripes. When a newspaper will attempt to justify such an infamous doctrine there is nothing too inconsistentor too immoral for it to stop at.

THE LONDON HORRORS.

A clue seems to have been acquired by the police to the recent murders in London, which have heretofore baffled all the efforts of the London detectives. From the evidence of one of the witnesses at the inquest on the latest victims, the supposed fiend is described as a man with a Jewish appearance, and mayhap London is being treated to a series of those horrors which spread terror and dismay throughout Vienna some years ago. These murders have upset the public mind to almost a panic, and bring out in glaring colors the fact that human nature still adheres to savagery no matter what religion, education, culture or refinement has done to the country. We are often told that we live in an enlightened age. In the early part of this century the case of the Burks, who murdered for the purpose of supplying bodies to the colleges in Edinboro', shocked and mystified the people of the time. Yet our age is more refined and enlightened, and the universal spread of knowledge leads all to the belief that savage instincts have been erased from human nature. We hear of horrors untold, committed not for gain, but with a sheer appetite for the love of destroying a fellow being. In the dark ages even these atrocities would have excited horror, committed as they are in undoubted sanity and without any extenuating circumstances. Past history of crimes has not proven that education, culture or refinement, ever totally eradicates the savageness of human nature. We see it break out every now and then with a virulence quite unaccountable in individuals who have had refined blood in their veins for generations. The Whitechapel murders furnishes a subject for discussion by minds devoted to the psyiological instincts of the human race. Many theories have already been advanced for the cause which leads to a continued perpetration of the outrages, still the public mind seems not as yet prepared to accept any of them, and impatiently await the clearing up of the mystery.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Vancouver World has discovthat the actions of the Provincial Secretary do not suit the Victoria TIMES, and has come to the conclusion that were the former a veritable angel Gabriel (which he is not) he would still fail to satisfy the TIMES' standard of an honest politician. The World, for the first time in its reference to this journal, has hit the nail squarely on the head and told the truth. The Provincial Secretary is a discredited politician. Were he to assume the character of the angel Gabriel we would very naturally conclude, as we do in the case of the World itself, that the "conversion" had been induced by the basest of motives. A life-long assailant of "honest" John can never be a successful defender of the same individual.

OUR MUSICAL COLUMN.

The Week's Concerts—Some Good Singing, Some Not so Good.

The concert given by the Young People of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church last Monday evening was not to say largely attended although a very good audience was present. The hall was decked with evergreens and the stage was simply beautiful with the array of flowers of many hues. It certainly did the committee credit. As much, I am afraid, cannot be said of the programme. The first part did not come up to expectations and the flute solo especially was one of the tamest things which in has been my painful duty to criticize.

The humorous side of English character, by the Rev. Mr. McLeod, was all that could be desired and kept his audience in very good humor, but the reverend gentleman is not so much at home in his English as Scotch. A vocal galop, "John Peel" by C Battery, was certainly a novelty. During the piece the bandsmen sing a part of this well-known air. The voices of course are not so well trained as might be, but it had a novel effect and was very pleasing to the audience, an encore being demanded and responded to. The second part began with an overture "Maid of Athens," by C Battery band, which was very well rendered. A song by Miss Bate was sung very nicely, every word being distinctly heard. This was the best vocal solo of the evening. Miss Bate received a vociferous encore and responded with "Last Night the Nightingale," which was also very well sung, but rather afraid of the high notes. Professor Strauss then gave a violin solo which was simply grand. D. S. Q cannot say enough in praise of the manner in which Professor Strauss performed. He is a master of the violin as well as the piano and all who listened to him cannot fail to see that we have a master musician amongst us. Professor Strauss responded to an encore by playing Scotch airs with wonderful variations, which sent the audience wild with enthusiasm.

Mr. Whyte's second reading created considerable amusement amongst the younger portion of those present. Miss Matthews sang "The Distant Shore" in much better style than her first piece. Her voice was perhaps not perfectly true at times, but it has a sweet tone. "Rule Brittania," by the, band closed the entertainment, the whole audience standing while the band played. D. S. Q cannot help saying that when entertainments are given more attention shoul be paid to the comfort of the audiences. The hall was cold all through the entertainment.

Considerable interest was aroused in musical circles about the concert to be given at St. James church under the direction of Prof. McKiernan, and as the Professor was to make his debut before a Victoria audience, a large audience assembled in Philharmonic Hall last Tuesday evening.

Shortly after 8 p. m the curtain was run up and the choir, numbering about thirty voices, were found seated on the stage. Prof. McKiernan then took his position in front and the concert began by the choir singing "The Stars in their gladness," by Weber. This was rather fairly rendered. A pianoforte duet by Miss Arrowsmith and Mrs. Dempster was very well rendered. Demi Semi Quaver, here, cannot pass without making a vigorous protest against the unwarranted annoyance performers are subjected to by a lot of chattering ladies who think that during a piano solo or duet is a fine time to indulge in a gossip. And the ladies are not the only ones to blame in this respect. Gentlemen, young and old, who ought to know better are guilty too. Now it is simply shameful that people who do not care to listen themselves will not allow any other person to do so. Prof. McKiernan sang a solo in Italian which, permit me to say, was a mistake to begin with. It no doubt showed his ability to sing in that language, but not many of his audience understood a single word. Mr. Robson sang "My Queen," accompanied by Prof. Sharpe. Mr. Robson was in good voice and although receiving an encore did not sing as well as usual. His encore song "The Beautiful City," was splendidly sung. This was the song which was on the programme and for some reason Mr. R substituted "My Queen." D. S. Q. thinks that "The Beautiful City" is far ahead of "My Queen." The second part began with a chorus "Faithful and True," which was the best of the choruses. "The Old Wherry," by C. A. Lombard, was fairly well rendered. A quintette by Miss Bowden, Mrs. Jay, Messrs. McKiernan, Jay and Leggat, was by far the best of the evening, the voices blending beautifully and each evidently acquainted in some degree with the piece. "Ave Maria" solo and chorus, Miss Arrowsmith taking the solo, was also very good, Miss Arrowsmith singing very well. The concluding chorus, "Good Night," by Pinsuti, was very well given. The whole evening's performance was entertaining though not of a very brilliant order. The Professor, I fear, has attempted too much considering the short time that he has been amongst us. Victoria audiences as a rule are critical and know when they hear music well given. A farce entitled Box and Cox, which was very well put on, concluded the entertainment.

A large attendance of members at Wednesday's rehearsal of the Choral Society was had and a splendid practice enjoyed. Several new members enrolled and D. S. Q. is informed that for the coming concert an orchestra is to be secured. Everything promises well and the committee are jubilant. The society is now in good working order and only requires this concert to be a success in order to put it on a sound financial basis. The management seem to be working hard and with their energetic conductor cannot fail to make a success of it.

CITY AND PROVINCE.

—The Dominion Government are being requested to put stearine on the free list.

—Mr. A. M. Burgess, Deputy minister of the Interior, continues to improve in health.

—Mrs. Barnhart, cor. Pratt and Broadway, has been a sufferer for twelve years through Rheumatism, and has tried every remedy she could hear of, but received no benefit, until recommended to try Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil; she says she cannot express the satisfaction she feels at having her pain entirely removed and her rheumatism cured. *

—An extensive deposit of mica has been found a short distance east of Hamilton by a man who was digging a well.

—Differences of opinion regarding the popular internal and external remedy, Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil—do not, so far as known, exist. The testimony is positive and concurrent that the article relieves physical pain, cures lameness, checks a cough, is an excellent remedy for pains and rheumatic complaints, and it has no nauseating or other unpleasant effect when taken internally. *

—A man in Hamilton for chastising his son for playing truant by kicking him about the head and face was fined $10.

—FIRST RELIEF ULTIMATELY A CURE. These are the successive effects of one of the most deservedly popular remedies in the Dominion, Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, which reforms an irregular condition of the bowels and liver, invigorates the stomach, renews digestion, and changes the current of the blood from a sluggish and turbid into a pure, rapid, and fertilizing stream. *

—The Dublin United Ireland says it would be cheap for America to establish Home Rule in Ireland, even at the cost of a war with Great Britain.

—Mr. T. C. Berchard, public school teacher, Norland, writes: "During the fall of 1881 I was much troubled with Biliousness and Dyspepsia, and part of the time was unable to attend to the duties of my profession. Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure was recommended to me, and I have much pleasure in stating that I was entirely cured by using one bottle. I have not had an attack of my old complaint since, and have gained fifteen pounds in weight." *

—The new Canadian seminary in Rome, at the request of Sir John Macdonald to the British Government, has, by permission of the Italian Government, been placed under the protection of the British flag.

An Explanation.

What is this "nervous trouble" with which so many seem now to be afflicted? If you will remember a few years ago the word Malaria was comparatively unknown—to-day it is as common as any word in the English language, yet this word covers only the meaning of another word used by our forefathers in times past. So it is with nervous diseases, as they and Malaria are intended to cover what our grandfathers called Biliousness, and all are caused by troubles that arise from a diseased condition of the Liver which in performing its functions finding it cannot dispose of the bile through the ordinary channel is compelled to pass it off through the system, causing nervous troubles, Malaria, Bilious Fever, etc. You who are suffering can well appreciate a cure. We recommend Green's August Flower. Its' cures are marvelous. *

A Common Cold

is often the beginning of serious affections of the Throat, Bronchial Tubes, and Lungs. Therefore, the importance of early and effective treatment cannot be overestimated. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral may always be relied upon for the speedy cure of a Cold or Cough.

Last January I was attacked with a severe Cold, which, by neglect and frequent exposures, became worse, finally settling on my lungs. A terrible cough soon followed, accompanied by pains in the chest, from which I suffered intensely. After trying various remedies, without obtaining relief, I commenced taking Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and was Speedily Cured.

I am satisfied that this remedy saved my life.—Jno. Webster, Pawtucket, R. I.

I contracted a severe cold, which suddenly developed into Pneumonia, presenting dangerous and obstinate symptoms. My physician ordered the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. His instructions were followed, and the result was a rapid and permanent cure.—H. E. Stimpson, Rogers Prairie, Tex.

Two years ago I suffered from a severe Cold, which settled on my Lungs. I consulted various physicians, and took the medicines they prescribed, but received only temporary relief. A friend induced me to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. After taking two bottles of this medicine I was cured. Since then I have given the Pectoral to my children, and consider it for Colds, Coughs, and all Throat and Lung diseases, ever used in my family.—Robert Vanderpool, Meadville, Pa.

The Best Remedy

Some time ago I took a slight Cold, which, being neglected, grew worse, and settled on my Lungs. I had a hacking cough, and was very weak. Those who knew me best considered my life to be in great danger. I continued to suffer until I commenced using Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Less than one bottle of this valuable medicine cured me, and I feel that I owe the preservation of my life to its curative powers.—Mrs. Ann Lockwood, Akron, New York.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is considered, here, the one great remedy for all diseases of the throat and lungs, and is more in demand than any other medicine of its class.—J. F. Roberts, Magnolia, Ark. ††

CARIBOO ELECTION.

Meeting Held at Barkerville—Report of the Speeches by the Three Candidates.

Each Makes Out a Good Case for Himself—Mr. Rogers Brief and to the Point.

A meeting was called last night by Frank Barnard to give the electors an opportunity of knowing his opinion on some of the leading topics of interest as a candidate for the Commons.

Mr. James Innes was chosen chairman, who called the other gentleman who were aspirants for political honors to take seats on the platform and then introduced Mr. Barnard. Mr. B said he was glad to meet so many electors who were, he presumed, all the voters in the district. He believed in public meetings. A personal canvass was disagreeable both to candidate and voters. He had not exacted a promise from any elector. He thought the electors should have an opportunity of seeing for themselves and hearing who was able to stand up for their rights when an occasion presented itself in the Commons on a subject in which the Province was directly interested. New members were not expected at first to speak. He had been at Ottawa, and knew that there were young men there as members; acknowledged that he was ambitious and thought it was a laudable ambition. He had large interests in the district, probably more than both the other candidates combined. Had endeavored to develop resources of the district; was interested in the B. Col. Co. which expended $20,000 last year, but the ore was found to be low grade. If he went to Ottawa as representative he would have more weight than as Frank Barnard. He didn't mean avoirdupois like his friend (McLeese) but thought he had sufficient influence to induce men of means to assist in the development of our mines. He was satisfied that we had rich mines but a great deal of the money had been mis-applied. Much money had been expended on machinery that was never put up. (A voter who had been making philosophical but invidious interruptions was here conducted to the door.) There had been more mining enterprises among the Americans, of which he gave instances. Some of the leading men all through the States were Canadians, but they knew very little about B. C. It was the duty of a representative to advertise the country. He had some influence and was satisfied that he could induce capital to come in. He now came to an important subject, viz: railway matters. (Applause.) There were six railways competing for transcontinental and Oriental traffic, and there would be more, including one to the north of this. A branch from the Canadian Pacific would have the advantage of tapping this line as well as passing through the mining region. Mr. B. here explained that as part owner of the stage line that he made far more money during the construction of the railway than at any other time. He took some credit as being one of the first who broached the idea of a railway. The first scheme had failed, but he had never given up the idea of completing the scheme. It was admitted that railways were necessary to the development of a country. The province should not hesitate to give a large land grant. He believed that a syndicate were better able to manage such a scheme than the Government. The Government had given 750,000 acres of land for building 40 miles of railway, but that had reverted to the government. He would advocate the giving of 20,000 or 25,000 acres a mile land grant, surface rights only and a royalty on ores say $1 per ton. Any company would expect something like this. It would be in the interest of such a company to prospect for the sake of transporting ores, etc. One of the cabinet ministers had promised him if a company could secure such a land grant the Dominion Government would guarantee the interest on the bonds. He took a trip through Colorado for to compare it with British Columbia. The development of that country was attributable to railway facilities. The same or greater results could be looked for here. He thought that he could induce capital to come in. He had already tried to induce capital to take hold and was hopeful yet of the result. Another inducement was the smelting works. The ores here were iron pyrites and that kind was wanted; they would pay more for that class of ore as iron was wanted as a flux. It would be to the interest of such a company to assist in building a railway on the scheme outlined. The cry of, non-resident, he looked on as absurd and instanced cases of meeting mining men through being in Victoria. He took some credit for introducing Mr. Martin and gave him a pass over his line. With regard to his connection with the Express Company, he had no reason to be ashamed. They had done everything they could. No doubt some dissatisfaction existed, but that was inevitable. They got the best men that they could and had paid all debts. The service they had agreed for was a two-horse wagon from Quesnelle. He said he was coming again, whether elected or not, so that it was his interest to see everything connected with the mails was satisfactory. The Conservative Government had carried out the grand scheme of a continental road and he would support them. It would have been for the district had there been no opposition. He would liked to have been elected by acclamation. The voters' lists were very defective. He would endeavor to remedy the anomalies existing. He thought that anyone getting such a large number of names to his nomination paper was taking an unfair advantage. He thought some little dodge was intended. He explained to the electors that there was nothing binding in such a paper and he hoped to get a large number of votes in Cariboo.

Mr. McLeese was called on by the chairman. He would like to ask Mr. Barnard what taxes he paid, but Mr. B. was not prepared to answer that question. Mr. McLeese was very glad to see the ladies present. He hoped to see that the march of events would show that they were worthy of taking a more direct interest and that they would soon have votes. The main subject was the railway. He supported the first railway. The land grant asked for was ten-mile sections He claimed that Mr. Barnard, Sen., and Dewdney had changed the route to the Fraser. He maintained that not much credit should be given for that, as it was to their own interest and against the best interests of the country. He had interested himself in the development of the country, and had seen mining men in Victoria, and thought that, other things being equal, a resident would be the best man. He had done so much to develop the country as his friend before him claimed to do. He could show by his books that he was out $14,000 in developing mining. He had gone to San Francisco for the purpose of inducing capitalists to take hold of Hixon Creek. He would echo what had been said in regard to the railway, and knew that a railway was the only means of opening up the country. He did not think that a cabinet minister would do more for one than for another. The franchise act would be one matter that should have been altered to suit the needs of the country. The want of population was about the greatest grievance that the country was laboring under. He would advocate the establishment of a mint, also of a mining bureau. He was the first to move for such a scheme in the Local House, and as a result instructions had been given for a mineralogical survey. The province had voted half of the expense of a geological survey and Mr. Bowman had been sent for the purpose. His final report he thought would soon be in the hands of his audience. He also dilated on the advantages to be derived from the establishment of a school of mines, where young men could study and we could grow our own experts and do away with the necessity of importing men who, many of them, did nothing but put up jobs on the people; but there were no doubt honorable men among them and he thought we were fortunate in having a good man now. Reverting to the railway again he thought the miners should talk amongst themselves as to what royalty should be paid as he thought a mine should be paying before a royalty should be imposed. As to the nomination papers, he thought there was something wrong about one of the candidates (Mr. Rogers) having such a large number and thought he was lucky in having his number before he came or he might have been left out in the cold. In reference to his giving up his position as M. P. P., he would say, that like his young friend, he was ambitious. He had been requested to wait 'till the general election and then come out. Why did not men try to be elected from their own district? The best thing he hoped was that the electors would prove at the polls that his opinion, that a resident of the district was the man to be a member. He considered the railway the thing and would do everything in his power to have it built. He would instance the Cœur d'Alene, a mining region only five years old, but it has now two railways running and the two of them were not enough to carry out the concentrations and they were now building a third. He looked forward to the same results here if we could get capital to assist and to build the railway. It would benefit all in the district, farmers as well as miners. His best efforts would be devoted to getting the Dominion Government to assist and thereby lessen the cost to the province. In bidding them all good-by as a local representative he thanked them all heartily and hoped to meet them all again as their representative to the House of Commons.

Mr. Rogers, being now called on, came forward and was received with applause. He said the principal subject that could be brought forward was the railway and he could promise that he would use his utmost endeavors to see it brought to a successful issue. He showed how many of the necessities of life were heavily taxed by having to be freighted in at present, and by a railway they would be so much cheaper that prospecting and development could be done where now it was impracticable. He was and always had been a liberal conservative, and he considered that the Government which had done so much for the country should receive a hearty support and he would support it, and he could look forward with confident hope for their assistance in building what was so much needed to open out our resources—a railway to Cariboo. He felt confident in the future of Cariboo, with a railway running into this rich region, and would do his best to bring to successful completion a work of such necessity that in fact the future of Cariboo and the life of the country depended on railway development. He had heard it stated about the influence that could be brought to bear on the Government, but he thought he was not behind either in the wish or in the ability to influence the Government to do what was wanted, and touched on the intimate relation in which his family stood with men that stood the highest in the Dominion. With regard to mail matters he considered them very unsatisfactory, and he considered the influence spoken of had been used to the disadvantage of the best interests of the country. When there was no bank here they had taken their bars of gold to the post office and had got money orders. That was stopped. Then they had sent the bullion through the mail. That was stopped. It was time that there was some one at Ottawa who would see to the interests of the people and not in that of a corporation. With regard to a mint he quite agreed that such an institution should be established in some part of the country, and then people would be able to get the value of their gold. He believed that a government that had united the scattered provinces with their various interests, into one harmonious whole, was the one to which we could hopefully look for assistance for the province.

"Dickens Had One Trick"

remarked the Professor, in a discussion of favorite authors, "which always struck me as an oddity. I mean his habit of pinning some distinctive word or phrase on a character, which must be uttered on all occasions. Now people in real life don't iterate like parrots. At least, I know of only one person who is liable to such criticism—young Bowden, my neighbor. The picture of health, isn't he? Ruddy cheeks, sparkling eyes, ringing voice. Well, his pet phrase, which I've heard him repeat to perhaps a score of people suffering from coughs and weak lungs, is, 'Take Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.' No wonder, either, for it saved him from a consumptive's grave."

CONSUL STEVENS.

Presented With An Address by the Catholic Clergy and Congregation.

Mr. Charles Gabriel, on behalf of the Roman Catholic clergy and congregation, presented an address to United States Consul Col. Robt. J. Stevens this afternoon. The American Consul took an active part in assisting the clergy to obtain an American war vessel for the conveyance of the remains of the late Archbishop from St. Michael. The Consul corresponded with the Department of State at Washington and received their assent. The War Department was instructed to advise their officers of the action taken and orders were given that the first vessel calling at St. Michael should disinter the remains and convey them to Victoria. Captain Emory carried out these instructions in a manner which received the praise and commendation of the clergy and people of this city. The following is a copy of the address:

VICTORIA, B. C., 17th Nov. 1888.

To R. J. Stevens, Esq., U. S. Consul, Victoria, B. C.

DEAR SIR,—We have been requested, in the name of the Catholic Clergy and people of this city, to express to you our heartfelt thanks for the part you have taken in the removal of the mortal remains of our greatly beloved and most lamented Right Rev. Archbishop Chas. J. Seghers from its last resting place, St. Michael, to Victoria.

We can assure you that your kind services in a matter so vital to us have been fully appreciated.

We desire to convey to your most respected Government our sincere thanks for all that has been done under your recommendation.

We have the honor to subscribe ourselves on behalf of the clergy and people.

Your Grateful Servants,
J. N. LEMMENS,
Bishop of Vancouver Island,
CHAS. GABRIEL,
J. SEHL,
E. A. MCQUADE,
T. DEASY,

Meeting To-Morrow.

Col. Woodford will hold a temperance meeting for men only, in the Pandora street Methodist lecture room at 4 o'clock to-morrow afternoon. He will also speak in the church on gospel temperance at 7 o'clock in the evening.

Sound Steamers.

On Monday next the new schedule of the O. R. & N. steamers will go into effect. Steamers will arrive in Victoria at 9 a. m. and will leave for Puget Sound at 11 a. m. This schedule will be kept up during the winter months.

Saanich-New Westminster Railway.

A large surveying party under C. E. Perry, C. E., will leave to-morrow morning for Ladner's Landing for the purpose of continuing the surveys in connection with the Saanich and New Westminster railway. It is also intended to run a line to Blaine, Washington Territory.

For San Francisco.

The following passengers left by the Umatilla to-day for San Francisco: Mrs J Dorman and two children, Mrs W H Dorman, Miles McEvily, D La Fountaine & wife, O E Cockborn, Mrs. H L Barnes, J T Garimell, Mrs Thomson, Mr Alex Stephen, Miss Hopkins, J M Jensen and 12 in the steerage.

Young Men's Christian Association.

There will be a meeting for young men to-night at the rooms, Broad street, at 8 o'clock. The topic is "Not Afraid to Stand Alone." The service will be conducted by Mr. W. J. Ledingham. To-morrow at 4 p. m. there will be another mass meeting for men in charge of Mr. J. J. Daley. Good singing and an interesting service. A cordial invitation is extended to every young man to attend these services.

Gamblers Quit Business.

The gamblers of Seattle have quit business. They acted promptly upon the hint given them that they would be "pulled" if found operating their various games after Tuesday night, and so they have turned "honest" men. They still linger about their familiar haunts, but the charm has departed from them and Othello's occupation is gone, as it were. If they want to pursue their precarious and unlawful vocations, they will hereafter be compelled to ply it to some other town.

Correction.

In the report of Dr. Griffin's trial in the police court on Wednesday last a mistake occurred in the printed report. The witness, Atherten, is made to say that Mr. Dunsmuir told him he had no use for Chinese, negroes or Indians. The witness said: "Dr. Griffin told me he had no use for niggers, Indians or Chinese." The mistake occurred through placing a substitute in the reporter's place during his absence for luncheon. The correction is made at the request and in justice to Mr. Dunsmuir.

The Walla Walla.

At 9 o'clock on Friday morning the steamer Walla Walla sailed from San Francisco for this city. She is now a splendid passenger ship, being a sister to the Umatilla. Her furnishings and fittings are elaborate and the hardwood work in her cabins is splendidly done. She has an electric light plant and is supplied with every appliance which can add to the comfort and convenience of the passengers. The transformation from a black, dirty collier to such a fine passenger boat has been effected at a cost of $150,000, and has occupied five months' time. The steamer Mexico will be used as a spare ship.

Chip o' the Old Block.

Any theatrical company billed to play at the Victoria, coming by the Sound boat, always has to contend against the general belief that the steamer will arrive late, thereby disappointing the audience. Owing to this belief only a fair house greeted the performance of "A Chip o' the Old Block" last evening. This side-splitting comedy was well put on the boards, and those that had the pleasure of being present, we are sure, did not regret it. The piece is full of incident, pathos, fun and frolic, often going from the sublime to the ridiculous, which adds zest to the play throughout; it is devoid of any vulgarity, and always kept within the confines of decency and decorum. Punctually at half past eight the curtain was rung up, and for nearly three hours the audience were kept in one continuous roar of laughter. The dialogue is pithy, full of wit and humor, and contains nothing that would offend the most delicate ear. R. L. Scott, as the retired old tar, of many battles and a wooden leg, with a heart full of genuine sailor-like kindness and good nature, is a show in himself; while Harry Mills is, in action and accent, the very ideal of a "blooming English jock." He partakes of the stables and race course throughout. Miss Jessie Bonstette as "Pixey" is bright, witty and frolicsome, possessing a grace seldom to be met with; her singing, dancing and repartee are inimitable. She is truly a serio comic artiste of burlesque. The singing of Harry Mills is something to be desired, possessing a good voice, which he knows well how to use with effect. The matinee this afternoon was well patronized and the young and old seemed to catch on to the fun. "A Chip O'the Old Block" will be repeated again this evening, when no doubt it will be greeted with a full house. All desiring to have a good laugh to assist their digestion, should go and witness the piece.

NOVEMBER ODE.

No longer on the garden gate
Fond lovers swing;
November breezes regulate
That sort of thing.

Within the cosy parlor now,
Before the grate
They sit, and never notice how
It's growing late.

Ten dollar coals illuminate
With ruddy glow
The cosy room, and though 'tis late,
He does not go.

Next day she has a sleepy air,
Her pa's enraged;
But, after all, what does she care?
She is engaged.

THE DEVIL AMONG LAWYERS.

AIR—LOVE AMONG THE ROSES.

The devil went to a court of lawyers,
To visit his most sage employers,
And find among the learned throng,
Who'd prove most clearly right was wrong;
Or if one fool among all these
Would plead a cause without his fees.
They spoke of many a righteous cause
That had been lost by paltry flaws;
And unjust ones gain'd many a time
By wisely adding one more crime.
The devil found himself outdone
In every point they argued on;
And seem'd so pleased with all he saw,
Served seven years unto the law.

DR. HAMILTON GRIFFIN.

Continuation of Case—A Witness Missing—Mrs Griffin in Hysterics.

The courtroom was crowded this morning with spectators and witnesses. Dr. Griffin was ushered in at 11 o'clock and was accompanied by his wife. He wore a light coat and had a large yellow rose in his buttonhole.

James A Cohen was the first witness called. He said his time was valuable and asked the court whether it would be necessary to give evidence.

The court said in criminal cases it was compulsory for witness to give evidence.

The witness said he was a printer in this city; printed the Social World for Dr. Griffin; he edited the paper with the assistance at one time of "Dr. Chalmers;" the writing on the paper was done by Dr. Griffin in my presence; the writing is on a piece of paper with a lithograph of His Honor the Lieutenant Governor; the papers produced were given into my hands by Dr. Griffin; exhibit "J" is the impression of the first number and a copy of the second number of the Social World.

To Mr. Walker—I am no expert in handwriting; I did not see the Doctor write on anything but the first piece of paper; the writing produced looks like that of Dr. Griffin; I am almost sure the papers produced were written on by Dr. Griffin.

William White, sworn—I reside in Victoria; exhibits produced I have seen before; I tried to get letter paper in the stores similar to the paper on which the letters are written; found some paper identical with the paper with the first three letters with the "black hand;" I find the paper I procured from M. W. Waitt & Co. is identical with all the papers on which the letters are written; the other stationers did not have any similar paper; I inquired from Mr. Waitt regarding the party purchasing the paper. I have seen Dr. Griffin's writing; I compared it with the letters; I became of the opinion that the prisoner, Dr. Griffin, sent those letters to Mr. Dunsmuir. The similarity of the writing has everything to do with that opinion.

To Mr. Walker—I compared the writing with exhibits "J" and "L" and from them alone I formed the opinion that Dr. Griffin sent the letters.

To the Court.—I am accountant in the E. & N. Railway office and private secretary to Mr. Dunsmuir.

Henry B. Heywood, sworn—I live in Victoria; I know Dr. Griffin; I was never in his employ; I never worked with him; I was in the Star office; I met Dr. Griffin in the Star office several times. I had a conversation with Dr. Griffin at the Windsor Hotel. Dr. Griffin said Mr. Dunsmuir was the biggest enemy he had; Dr. Griffin showed me a portion of a letter which he was writing to Mr. Bate of Nanaimo. It was not very flattering to Mr. Dunsmuir. This occured in May last to the best of my recollection.

To Mr. Walker—I had no quarrels with Dr. Griffin; we had some burlesques; I knew what he was before he came here and I gave him a rap now and again; Dr. Griffin said he would kill me if I wrote about him again and I took that also as a burlesque; the exact words were that he would either horsewhip or kill me if I referred to him again in the papers.

Mr. Dunsmuir, recalled—Envelope produced is the one in which I received the first letter. Envelope produced I received the second letter in.

His Honor—Do you wish to cross-examine witness, Mr. Walker.

Mr. Walker—No, Your Honor.

Mr. Dunsmuir—I wish you would cross-examine me.

Mr. Taylor said he must ask for a remand. There was one witness who could not be found at present and it would be necessary to have this witness present.

Mr. Walker—We strongly object to a remand. There has been no case proved.

Mr. Taylor—I think a prima facie case has been proved.

His Honor—You might state the name.

Mr. Taylor—I cannot give the name at present. The reason will be shown when we secure the witness.

Mr. Walker—Well, the defence will not object to the remand.

The case was accordingly remanded until 11 o'clock Monday morning.

Whilst one of the witnesses was giving evidence Mrs. Griffin arose and walked out of the court room. Supt. Sheppard, Officer Lavin and Alex. McDonald took charge of the lady who was attacked with hysteria. Her sobs could be distinctly heard in the court room. A carriage was telephoned for and the lady was taken to the Windsor Hotel.

SIMPSON ARRESTED.

The Night Agent Arrested at Kamloops—The Money Recovered.

Fred E. Simpson, night clerk of the Northern Pacific Express Company, disappeared from Tacoma on Tuesday morning taking with him $13,000 in greenbacks in transit to Spokane Falls. The fugitive arrived in this city on Wednesday night. He registered at the Clarence hotel as John R. Johnson, Los Angeles, California. Simpson remained in the hotel all day and left for the mainland on Thursday morning. He took the Atlantic Express at Vancouver on Thursday at 12:45 o'clock after purchasing a ticket from Vancouver to St. Paul. Detectives arrived in this city on Wednesday night and immediately telegrams were sent along the line giving a description of the thief. Conductor Barnhart of the C. P. R., received a telegram at Spence's Bridge with a description of the man and located him in a sleeper with a ticket for St. Paul. A guard was placed over him and telegrams were sent to Kamloops for a constable to meet the train. When the train arrived at that place the man was arrested and searched. In a small brown valise the constable found $12,118, consisting of $5,785 in gold and $6,333 in bank notes and silver. The man was travelling under the name of Moore. He was dressed in a check coat and vest, striped trousers, grey overcoat and a stiff grey hat. He was locked in the gaol at Kamloops and will be kept until proceedings can be taken for his extradition. Simpson is 22 years of age, light complexion, with fair hair and light moustache.

God. We admired the palatial episcopal residence, the grand proportions of the Academy of the Sisters of St. Ann, the improvements at the Hospital and at St. Louis College; the large and choice library, the beautiful sacerdotal vestments—all procured in a very short time and at considerable expense. On July 6th, the Archbishop wrote me, sympathising over the loss of one of my priests, and added: "Adieu, dear Bishop. I leave for Alaska, and God knows when or whether I shall return. Pray for me." He left us on the 13th of July, 1886, and it is during that month of last year that we received the news of his having offered the morning sacrifice of his life, shedding his blood for the flock of Christ at 6 o'clock a. m. on Sunday, Nov. 28th, ante-vigil of the Feast of St. Andrew, the Apostle, on the banks of the Yukon, Alaska Territory, thirty miles from any habitation, the thermometer marking 20 degrees below zero, he awoke at the voice of his assassin as the death dealing fire flashed into his face. He crossed his arms on his breast and bowing his head he expired. His soul went to God whilst his blood and body were left alone freezing in the deserted cabin. "May his dear soul rest in peace." With the Apostle he could say: "I have fought the good fight; I have finished my course; I have kept the faith. For the rest there is laid up for me a crown of justice, which the Lord the just judge will render to me at that day." What a heroic end to such a heroic life! Martyr of Charity! I feel almost like invoking you, and, using the words of the Litanies, I would exclaim: "All ye holy martyrs, pray for us."

Your last word to me, dearest friend, Most Reverend Archbishop, was: "Pray for me." Whilst doing so, I beg of thee to remember me also, and all those who feel that they have lost the treasure of a true friend, a devoted pastor, a faithful teacher, a model Bishop. We will miss you in many ways O gentle soul! O bright mind! O spirited ruler! Your virtuous example is of the past. Your soul-inspiring letters will no longer reach us. Your erudition ceases to shorten our investigations. Your wise counsels will no longer be heard. Thousands in Europe and America will miss your beautiful pastorals and descriptions of new countries. The firm hand that guided the destinies of this Diocese is cold in death. Alaska has lost its grandest friend. Many "weapons of war perished."

Christian people, dearly beloved religious, worthy Priests and Bishop of Vancouver Island, you have lost your spiritual father. With you we are overwhelmed with grief, we feel the loss most intensely, and would despair did we not know the Christian teaching not to be sad as those who have no hope. Yes, as Christians we have every reason to hope that whilst we weep he rejoices; whilst we stand wondering how this comes to pass he is admiring the wisdom of God; whilst we say: "All is lost now for this Diocese," he says: "The sacrifice of my life has been accepted by the Lord that many may obtain life eternal."

Yes, we hope that his life, his death, and his prayers will be more powerful now than ever before to lead us on in the path of Faith, Hope and Charity—the path to Heaven.

May the example of his many virtues ever shine before us, and may his prayers now assist us in doing the will of God.

May your saintly soul, dearest Archbishop, rest in peace, and may perpetual light shine upon you. Amen.

Lost in the Woods.

Charles Belas, the man who was lost at Comox on the 7th inst. with his nephew, Howe, were out in the woods and shot at a deer which they missed. They were alongside a swamp at the time and it was arranged that Belas should go around one side of the swamp and Mr. Rowe the other, to meet at Mr. Rowe's cabin at the other end of the swamp. Rowe succeeded in reaching his cabin, where he stayed all night. Belas not having arrived at the cabin Rowe thought that perhaps he had decided to go straight home. In the morning he went to Belas' house and was surprised to learn that he had not arrived. A search was at once instituted, but only a single trace was found, the footprints of nailed boots similar to those worn by Belas, near an overturned stump So energetic were the people in the search, that on Sunday no services were held in the churches, the ministers joining in the search. If Belas has come to an untimely end, the general opinion in Comox is that in the darkness he walked over the high bluff, which is only a short distance from the swamp, and fell into the river 100 feet below.
